A Rather Unusual Spread.
On Sunday last, Al Norte went on a hunting expedition to Big lake, and managed to kill an immense lion, which he fondly imagined to be a goose. On his return home he invited several friends to give a feast of roast goose, at a banquet to be given at last evening. The guests "caught on" to the nature of the spread, but said nothing to enlighten the happy sportsman. They clubbed together and secured a large quantity of bottles, leather, oil cloth and hay, with which the banquet was to be served. The lion was stuffed and laid out on the table, and at last appeared on the table, nicely browned and smoking hot. The lion was then cut and served to the supposed tender morsel. It was "tougher" than a killed owl, and he was finally compelled to eat it up, when the buttons and other articles of substantial "dinner" popped forth and rolled all over the table and floor. Everything else was in first class shape, but the unexpected turn of events had spoiled the occasion, for the host and his guests were too tired to eat. Of course, the guests had to have something to make amends for their disappointment, and the lion was finally eaten who had to foot the bill as "it would have been cheaper to have bought them all a supper at $5 a plate, in the first place."

Boulton Gets a Roasting in the Sims Perjury Case.

CANVASSING THE RETURNS.

The Grand Jury Ready for Business—Doing in District Court—The Anti-Prohibition With Organized—The Council.

Trying the Sims' Perjury Case.

The case of the state vs. Jacob Sims for perjury was called before Squire Schurz yesterday afternoon. The defendant took a charge of venue to Squire Barnett's court, and the hearing of the case was commenced.

The case is a sequel to the perjury case against David Gray, which was the outcome of a suit instituted by Gray against Sims as the owner of a saloon property on lower Broadway, which last was also the outcome of a suit against Sims for perjury.

The case charging Sims with the bottom promptly knocked out of it when Sims had Gray arrested for perjury in swearing that he owned the building. Gray was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $200, and the Gray-Boulton-Ford combination then decided that it would be proper to play even by having Sims indicted for perjury.

Proceeding in other cases. John Crow, who keeps a saloon at No. 3410 Broadway, was picked out as a fit subject to make the charges, and the case was set for trial at the residence of Mrs. J. Craig, on Eighth street, between Sixth and Seventh streets. Everybody cordially invited. Mrs. A. K. Kalka, president.

The Anti-Viv Section.

Colonel C. S. Ellsworth, state lecturer and organizer of the Iowa State Anti-Prohibition association, will organize a branch of the association in this city to-morrow evening, the meeting to be held at Peterson's hall on Broadway. Colonel Ellsworth is jubilant over the result of the recent election. He states that the association will work with renewed effort for a repeal of the Clark law during the coming winter. The headquarters of the anti-prohibition association are in Des Moines, and it is offered by W. V. Carey, president; H. W. Blanchard, vice president; J. L. Crawford, corresponding and financial secretary; George Somers, secretary; C. S. Ellsworth, H. Schneider and G. W. Knote, executive committee. Local branches have been organized at Ames, Des Moines, Dubuque, Cedar Rapids, Sioux City, and other cities and towns. There will doubtless be a large attendance at the meeting on Wednesday night.

Colonel Ellsworth is at the Ogden and would like to have all anti-prohibitionists call at the hotel and enroll their names and hear the details of the coming winter effort to repeal the Clark law. He is confident that the vote against prohibition is invited to call.

TO SEARCH FOR HIDDEN GOLD

A Queer Expedition Now Preparing in San Francisco.

PLAYED PIRATE WHILE IN PORT.

How a Young English Adventurer Turned a Piratical Account—A Thrilling Story of Love, and Cannibalism.

The Secret of Marianne Island.

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—[Special to THE BEE].—Notwithstanding the strenuous efforts at secrecy of those on the inside, information has come to light showing that an expedition is being organized in San Francisco harbor to go in search of the treasures said to be buried on the Marianne islands. Several capitalists, known to be in the circle, were approached for particulars, but they would neither deny nor affirm their connection with the enterprise, contenting themselves with stating that they had heard something about such an adventure being projected.

It is said there is a dispute over the men who will man the craft. Heretofore the character of the crew has been the cause of the disastrous failure of every expedition fitted out. Every effort is now being made to find faithful men of undoubted integrity. The charter will be of such a character to allow the ship almost a roving commission. The date of sailing has not yet been decided. A list of the names of the expedition is being compiled, and a reporter was enabled to gather the story of the great treasures buried on the islands, the clue to the possession of the story being obtained from Captain John Edwards, who has been the reluctant of them all in telling what he knew.

In the year 1828, during the dark days of the gold fever, a small number of the wealthy residents of Lima met at a monastery to devise a plan whereby some of their gold might be recovered. A scheme was devised to send a ship to the Marianne islands, and to search for the treasures said to be buried on the islands. The plan was to send a ship to the Marianne islands, and to search for the treasures said to be buried on the islands.
